

In My Duty to keep current on the situation with the apostate system, keep the People in the know about it so they can Choose appropriately, and sort out any reasonable and significant errors or misunderstandings either the People or the apostate system have so they're equipped to Choose what they genuinely want, it just makes sense for Me to provide a 'situational report' and some analysis. Before we get into some of the things the apostate system has been implying recently, let's review the overt behavior they've manifestly been presenting.

Still transgressing against Divine Will and even signaling a counter-Divine Will position rather blatantly.

Still routinely violating Divinely-conferred rights, internationally and systematically. This continues not only among 'their' lower-level rank-and-file personnel but with 'their' overt geopolitics, domestic activities within countries, and with direct regards to My own rights.

Still organizing the various governments to impose rights violations per their various agenda items, and consolidating the legal and political means to impose them for various reasons and on whatever pretexts in the future. This is likely most evident in the context of 'c[orona]vir[us]' responses, in which 'their' journalists keep using the word 'strict' when I'm fairly sure they mean 'lawless' or 'criminal', but is by no means limited to that. It's fairly clear by now from the evidence of about a dec[ade] of planning that 'c[orona]vir[us]' enforcement responses were intentionally contrived both to establish a legal and political means of increased and systematic rights violations in response, as well as to incite public resentment and resistance in order to better promote the apostate system's 'limited exposure' routine. That is, the People were meant to be provoked by it (both overtly and non-overtly) so that their eventual out[ri]ge could be directed to support the replacement of the 'interim w[or]ld order' caused by the apostate system's efforts for subversion, empire-building and consolidation with the so-called 'new w[or]ld order'. Despite being one contingency plan that would appear to be mutually-exclusive with their other major contingency, that of training and emplacing Myself or someone else who's Divine Will- and True Nature-aligned, the former does seem to continue unabated.

Additional supply cha[in] disruptions, most ostensibly caused by the 'c[orona]vir[us]' responses, which appear to be intensifying.

A continuing outfl[ow] of various overt and non-overt schemes, efforts and narratives from the apostate system. In fairness, the greatest of these they appear to be continuing to 'cancel' at the last minute. Regardless we can still notice the pattern of evidence of their formation (RedefiningGod has been quite deft at noticing and reporting many of these and presenting evidence for same), which appears to be quite a lot of investment of time, attention and manpower in frivolous 'busywork' which could and should have been invested in sorting out the situation. Additionally the People have been relegated to subsisting in the unworthy overt situation brought about by this continued stre[am] of organized-and-then-canceled whimsical narratives and situations.

In many nations including the States the average pay continues to be absurdly sub-living wages, the overt justice systems continue to be travesties, and here in the States inflation has been rampant while the Federal Reserve has been just majorly intensifying its monetary fiat printing presses and formally claiming even more of the country's tangible assets in collateral, all while prices rise upwards like we've never seen in history. This is relevant specifically because I'd already admonished the apostate system that the People here in the States have already endured quite enough economic and political unworthy resultants of the apostate system's unconscionable schemes to infiltrate, debase and subvert, and that for the apostate system to continue them would be not only unjust, but also a plain and direct clash with the Will of an authority who is in superior alignment with Divine Will than the apostate system is. As a plain indicator of the ongoing Choice of the apostate system to defy and reject Divine Will that becomes particularly telling, and therefore useful and worthwhile to notice. I'd admonished the apostate system about that some years ago now, and in fairness it's just vaguely possible that it's escaped their organizational attention. Reiterating it again clearly to enable the apostate system to avert coming off to the public as making a knowing, Willful and avoidable Choice to directly ignore Divine Will is just civility and courtesy.

And of course the apostate system do continue to decline to sort this out with Me directly, overtly and in plain English, opting instead for a non-overt symbolic basis for their implications. Either would necessarily be inherently non-credible on their part for as long as they continue to manifestly Choose to retain a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis, though it would of course have enabled Me to get any urgently-needed diagnostics accomplished.

In sum we see the apostate system manifestly continuing on a basis which overtly transgresses against Divine Will, True Nature and Divinely-conferred rights, despite whatever they appear to be implying on a non-overt basis via symbolism and the like. I've also been monitoring their non-overt messaging implications. This is due to a Duty per Divine Will to assist the People from getting caught up in the various schemes and narratives if I can, and to assist even the apostate system and 'its' personnel in the event that it's reasonably apparent and credible to Me that they're 'caught up' in some error or misunderstanding which prevents them from Choosing a Divine Will-aligned basis. That's just a matter of striving to be constructive and benevolent; in assisting others to realign with a Divine Will- and True Nature-aligned basis, every reasonable effort should be made to understand 'where they're at' including mental, experiential and situational limitations because it would be unjust to expect, require or demand something of them which is beyond their means or present ability. Gentle counsel is occasionally required from someone in greater alignment with Divine Will and True Nature to apply Divine Will principles and thus sort out their predicament. This is somewhat complicated by the inherently non-credible nature of a counter-Divine Will basis and judicious assessment should be made to ascertain their sincerity of course, but every reasonable effort and care should be made to assist them where practicable. And indeed, where heeded. This is inherent in the Common Law method of 'Notice and Demand'. Giving someone notice of their error or wrongdoing to enable them to correct it is only fair; if it goes unheeded and uncorrected then the practicable upshot is that you've established that it's not merely an innocent error. (This had long been denied Me from the apostate system, even as I'd been enduring not insubstantial losses on My own part in an effort to ensure, for example, that the Chosen position of the telepaths and propheciers was being made knowingly, Willfully and avoidably rather than, say, due to some form of 'duress'. That's just basic fairness on My part, and ought to come standard.)

Per Divine Will principles, we know that it's nobody's Divinely-conferred True Nature to genuinely want to live at odds with Divine Will, and with a functional, hale and worthy situation whether individually or societally. Those Choosing a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis usually do so because they've gotten 'stuck' in an error somewhere. In the case of the People that's generally been the result of subversion, infiltration and corruption which has been caused by the apostate system. Getting at the source of the problem, the apostate system's practices themselves, means trying to get them 'unstuck' too. And that requires striving to determine 'where they're at' mentally, an effort which has been complicated not only by the inherent unreliability of anything presented from a counter-Divine Will premise, but also the currently very 'cryptocratic' structure of the apostate system. By definition, it typically doesn't like to be understood by those who haven't accepted it. But at least making an honest and sincere best effort to do so is only right. Particularly when skipping that part of the process at the insistence of the offender would presumably mean recognizing that it's knowingly, Willfully and avoidably Chosen to just continue its transgressions and rights violations. Because that's the point at which an individual or an organization has just 'declared war' upon others and indeed upon Divine Will, and the apostate system has demonstrated historically a pattern of categorizing those who respond appropriately to that, 'expendable aggressors' who've instead 'declared war' upon it. Therefore, the apostate system must be clearly shown to either be doing its utmost to work cooperatively to achieve a Divine Will- and True Nature-aligned basis, or alternatively to be knowingly, Willfully and avoidably 'warring' against the People and indeed against Divine Will. In the case of the latter, the People would obviously have a 'need-to-know' on that.

With that in mind, let's have a look at what the apostate system have been putting out non-overtly recently so that we can strive to keep the People, and perhaps even the apostate system, from tripping figuratively on some error.

“[Chaos] mode”

Readers will recall what I'd presented in The “S-down” narrative regarding an apostate system process or protocol whereby they display an increasingly sorry and degraded state either overtly or symbolically, until it's replaced by the 'better thing': a new regime, a new authority figure, the replacement a franchise with its parent group, etc. Readers will also recall that the apostate system has been in the process of displaying that which ostensibly finalized at the end of [2021]. In December they'd been arranging the organizing symbolism for what they'd do next, and just about New Years' they'd shifted over to the next format which I'll term “[Chaos] mode”.

Their new trend involves putting out symbolism involving for example [water] + [earth]. Or sometimes, [water] + [fire] + [earth]. Examples include the news items on the Tongan [volcano] and numerous [media]slides. In their system [water] + [earth] technically parse into 'non-overt + overt', and this combo or symbolic trope is frequently used as perhaps the closest thing a top-down authoritarian system like the apostate use to ask a literal question. It's as if to say, 'We're not sure if...' and then whatever accompanies the symbolism. Derivative symbols from [media] for example are frequently used, as it's more convenient to reference: [marky] for example, which the reporters have been using quite a bit in various pieces. Between the counter-Divine Will symbolism in [media] deriving from [brown], itself a derivative of a sociological bit of symbolism, to their inclusion of the [fire] symbol in other instances, what appears to be the implied messaging amounts to an admission from the apostate system that, 'Just as you've said, while we remain on a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis anything we say or do from that basis is inherently and necessarily meaningless, invalid and unreliable.'

That trope has been accompanied by a persistent use of their 'this or that' symbolic trope, in which mutually-contradictory options are both presented. This again is the other trope the apostate system tend to use for a literal question, or more specifically to indicate that the Choice is not theirs but someone else's. I'll get more into their 'this or that' usage in a bit. What I'm presenting at the moment has to do with their pattern of indicating uncertainty or a lack of legitimate authority.

This is reiterated with their usage back in December of the [blue] symbol, back when they were setting this up rather than necessarily deploying it for Me. As I'd presented in January's 'Status Update' this has a connotation of 'just kidding!', 'we're not serious about this', or 'just temporary!'. I'll get more into that later as well, but what I'd wanted to present about it here is the continuing pattern of symbolism representing an unfixed, informal, apostate status in which emphasis is being made about an absence of legitimate authority.

There's one more symbol they've been deploying here that I should mention, namely [chaos]. I've encountered it before as a common-usage symbol, and it's typically been used to add an additional supposed 'inversion' symbol to a message, or if a supposed 'inverted' symbolic mode is being used, to optionally 'use up' the expected 'inversion'. Since it was a standard use symbol I'd of course looked it up, and though the concept of 'chaos' in our modern society has everything to do with the idea of 'everything being out of whack' that's not quite the original import. The Greek empire'd used it to represent 'the mythological void preceding the creation of the universe' and since we've already established that the Babylonian Kabbalists were using the Greek empire as a subverted and co-opted franchise system and greatly influencing their mythology, it's the Greek rather than the Christian model's definition that would be relevant here. So it represents the unformed state of things, in which there is nothing to speak of, and then Divine Authority moved in and gave it order and structure in an act of Creation. It would reference then an illegitimate state in which nothing 'matters' and everything is of no consequence, just awaiting a Greater Authority to present its Will and make it all worthwhile.

That would make sense in this context and situation. A symbolic 'yielding' to Divine Will-aligned and -derived authority. Of course I'm currently unable to do present that Will, to give direction with authority, because the manifest state of the apostate system remains too [h]t and as such the verifiable Choice of the organization for a genuinely valid state remains lacking. In layman's terms, I've manifestly had them flake on Me before. And I notice that they remain on a counter-Divine Will basis, continuing to make free with the symbols announcing a counter-Divine Will basis on their part. As such that implied 'yielding' cannot yet be trusted and remains just another presentment made by the apostate system on a counter-Divine Will basis waiting for someone else's buy-in, as I've described in 'Status Update'. And of course the overt patterns of behavior from the apostate system and the geopolitical narratives they've still been producing make their continued manifest Choice for a counter-Divine Will basis quite plain.

Were I to accept the presentment of even a whole organization on such a basis, that surely would be interpreted as a rejection on My part of a Divine Will-aligned basis from which My legitimate authority derives. The resulting nullification of My authority would 'crush the system' by resulting in a mere 'regime change' at best, in which no substantive or permanent improvements could be made. That's hardly sufficient. And the concerns presented in My 'Status Update' still remain; at worst I'd just be the next figurehead 'under' a counter-Divine Will entity.

The 'Divine Will is actually counter-Divine Will' flippy puzzle.

Apostate personnel have been occasionally making implications to the effect that, 'All this seeming [chaos] actually does make sense, if you know how to read it.' To that end they've infrequently been 'hinting' at various means of regarding a counter-Divine Will basis so that the symbolism appears to make sense and be legitimate, at least in a way.

The most frequently 'hinted' at version of this appears to involve an ideological trope that I've seen a lot of ostensibly 'higher level' apostate personnel adopt, at least the publicly-accessible personnel. Usually those 'at the top' of franchises like Freemasonry, or world-renowned 'spiritualists' and 'occultists' upon whom much praise has been lavished. The trope or ideology has to do with the idea that 'God', the Ultimate Divine Will Authority that most of us intuitively acknowledge, is actually the primary counter-Divine Will figure in the grand scheme of things and that the counter-Divine Will basis the apostate system have been on about is in fact the actual Divine Will authority. And from that basis, so the premise goes, once you know that all the plethora of things the apostate system does is ostensibly legitimate and makes sense.

Of course not only is that utterly blasphemous, it's plainly and easily disproven. Looking at the rights violations, abuses, oppression and routine and systematic detriments the apostate system have demonstrated in the accomplishment of their various agenda items throughout its organizational lifespan it clearly isn't legitimate and it doesn't make sense. Therefore what we'd have is sophistry and rationalization here.

If one were to accept the premise, then one would necessarily take the position that it does make sense. That would be a tremendous error. The context proffered there appears to be what some traditions symbolically refer to as a [mushroom], and what the Babylonian Kabbalists appear to reference as a [dome]; that is, a geometric reference to numerological [zero] which keeps groups of people [in a container]. On a very limited basis; a fallacious micro-context in which some live out their lives. Figuratively and symbolically, I'd never fit into one of those. It's much too [small].

'Just temporarily!' implied

I'd said I'd get more into their [blue] symbol later. I've actually described its symbolism back in 'Status Update', but here we've encountered that brief spate of it back when they were organizing whatever you'd like to call what they're doing now. Perhaps most notably was its use with the news item of Facebook changing its name to 'Meta', with a [blue] logo which I'd first associated to the human lungs but which is apparently a reference to the [infinity] symbol, itself a derivative of the ancient Egyptian [ouroboros] symbol, the [double]-[coiled] [serpent] which represented their [Atum], 'the first god who came into being from the chaotic waters of Nun (the primordial water from which the whole creation began in the first place) as he was born from these waters in the form of a serpent that renewed itself every morning.' And there we are back at that [chaos] and pre-Creation concept again. Isn't that interesting? The Egyptians used that symbol, usually [coiled], very infrequently [uncoiled], to ostensibly indicate that their overt rulers 'had awakened to Divine Will'. High praise, although the [snake] predicating it all from a counter-Divine Will basis isn't particularly encouraging. I do appreciate that the apostate system has been limited by their existing set of symbols, and this harkens back to what I'd presented in 'Status Update' regarding concerns about their apparent manifest counter-Divine Will basis throughout their organizational lifespan.

It begs the question which of those concepts is [blue], the [serpent] or the 'yielding'. That kind of ambiguity is pretty important to establish certainty on. And the refusal, temporary or otherwise, to establish that with clarity is part of a trope of 'this benevolent thing or that threatening thing' symbolism which isn't quite as ambiguous as it would at first seem: the Choice not to establish it clearly is itself a Choice of position, namely disrespect for Divine Will and for Divine Will-derived authority. Very simply, it's impudence and disrespect. And disrespect coming from the apostate system on a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis is manifestly a very recognizable pattern by now.

We've also gotten in the British and international 'news' the emphasis on a [party] involving Boris Johnson. A somewhat refreshing emphasis given the usual 'downbeat' nature of the international news items, but this was offset by all the fizzle about him being in so much trouble for it. Another "coronavirus"-derived item as well, and with plenty of [alcohol] emphasized which ordinarily means the apostate system are trying to sell an outside interest on something; to get them to 'internalize' something, usually [poisonous]. [Parties], to them, typically indicate an 'effort-in-process' and both [parties] and [recreational substances] are specifically used with their counterfeit 'resistance' efforts and narratives. Here of course there's also the additional uncertainty given that I've been on about the Divinely-conferred right for individuals to literally use whatever substances they'd like, without imposed external controls, and the apostate system had been responding by apparently alluding to a 'new usage' of those kinds of symbols to imply that messaging was 'overt-specific', or at least informal enough to be apropos of nothing when it comes to larger organizational concerns. That is, they'd been implying that it was to be dismissed as unsuitable for any formalized purpose to enact various agendas. Though perhaps well-intended I don't think that would be entirely appropriate, given a situation in which 'just ignore this!' symbolic tropes have been used as 'the thin end of the wedge' when it comes to infiltration and subversion efforts from the apostate system; a diminishment of standards in the interest of personal rights and freedoms just isn't sufficient when it comes to upholding Duty. Making exceptions like that tend to result in 'security vulnerabilities' which the apostate system have generally exploited rather deftly. The obvious solution of course would be for the apostate system to retroactively remove its various counter-Divine Will definitions it's added onto things, as well as its tendency to routinely infiltrate and subvert outside interests. But it would seem that is pending its rejection of a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis. At any rate the Johnson item was also replete with implications of 'this is going to happen this way - wait! no it's not, we're going to do that instead', particularly with the timing and release of the [Grey] report. [Grey] as a [black-and-white] symbol would of course be yet another [kitten] reference, ostensibly indicating Myself.

As with [blue], [parties] would or could come under the 'fun and frivolity' category, particularly given that implied 'new usage' connotation the apostate system had been implying for it. Prime Minister Johnson's position being in dispute as a direct result could be what the [kitten] symbolism was intended to imply an 'inversion' of, but that's not certain.

Now the idea of their implying 'just temporarily!' with regard to their counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis is almost to be expected. Ostensibly they want better, and in recognizing Divine Will-derived authority they now have an organizationally-acceptable means of restoring a valid and legitimate basis retroactively. Therefore their current manifest unworthy organizational condition would more or less have to be 'temporary' and 'not seriously desired'. But as I'd mentioned in My last I'm not aware of any valid or authentic need for 'thinking time' or 'sorting out time' on the part of the apostate system; given the capabilities of 'their' telepaths and propheciers, they must surely have seen this situation coming from a long way off and indeed did much to systematically bring it about when they tutored Me in Divine Will principles. So if even such a 'temporary!' counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis is perfectly avoidable on their part, then perpetuating it even just 'temporarily!' is surely just a clear indicator of a knowing, Willful and avoidable manifest Choice on their part for a continuing counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis. It's just 'business as usual', along with whatever trending messaging is currently necessary to assuage concerns about and denouncements of it.

In which case the apostate system's error would be this: That it's a rejection of their Divinely-conferred True Nature to rationalize the perpetuation of an illegitimate, counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis, particularly for a situation which defies their own True Nature to genuinely want.

'What do you think we're doing?'

I said I'd get more into their [this-or-that] symbolic trope, and here it is. As mentioned it's ordinarily used by the apostate system to symbolically reference a Choice on someone else's part, and both mutually-exclusive outcomes are referenced ostensibly because until that Choice was made, the apostate system couldn't know which applied. That's not strictly accurate given the capabilities of the telepaths and propheciers, but it's an oversimplification which serves the purpose. And since about the end of last year we've gotten a plethora of this kind of trope from the apostate system.

In filming for something called 'R[est]', an actor picks up a prop gun only to have it take the life of a Ukrainian director of photography on-site, Halyna Androsovych alias Halyna Hutchins. The alliteration of her name would be a [Gemini], [twin] or [kitsune] reference, and this was back in October when they were just organizing whatever you'd like to call what they're doing now.

Similarly, a cop (Kimberly [Pitter]) 'mistakes' her government-provided service gun for her government-provided service TASER. The event happened back on the [eleventh] of April, a 'master number'. The trial was reverberated throughout the national and international media in late December, also about the time the apostate system were setting up for this year.

Something that was supposed to be innocuous and no threat to [life] instead [absurdly] became [fatal]. The pattern is rather surreal, and reminiscent of the 'FEED ME A STRAY CAT' scene and everything after that from 'American Psycho': in one 'read' of it, it describes someone who's lived at such odds with basic foundational principles that although he's successful in what he's intended to do, the results are completely decoupled from any sensible reality and just as nonsensical as they are unsatisfying.

Of course there's been a semi-recent trend of cops who take innocent lives and get off in the apostate-corrupted judicial system on the claim that they've 'mistaken' their gun for a TASER; overtly there are various quasi-legitimate 'reasons' for what had transpired. But it's the apostate system's organizing symbolism and implications we're after here, not the overt events themselves. As such we should focus on that, if only in a very civilized effort to assist the People and perhaps the apostate system from anything with which they're 'stuck'.

[Rest] would be a combination of [orange] (a [fire]-derivative symbol meaning [war]), [metal] and specifically [iron] referencing [Mars] (so [war] yet again), an [explosion] symbolizing uncertainty or 'what-iffery' rather than 'what's so', and either a [surface] derivative of their [face], [mask] or [in front of] symbolism, or a deterioration and supposed 'inversion' of same. I suppose at the outside there could also be a [corruption] symbol in there, as in the alchemical concept symbolizing moral degradation and decay. There's definitely a [theater] symbol in there indicating 'purely for show', though whether that's meant to be 'inverted' or not by the accompanying symbolism isn't plain. And of course that hearkens back to their [Aphrodite] symbolism, itself a counter-Divine Will derivative symbol. And if you think using "the [arts]" as a reference to a counter-Divine Will basis, you ought to see what they've done with [I]ve] by way of [Ven]s] and [the m]orning st]r]. Honestly, you can learn a lot about the mindset of an organization by what they use their systems of symbolic lingo to discuss and what non-overt definitions they ascribe to even the nicest things in life.

But their dispersal of the [this-or-that] symbolic trope didn't stop with that. We had various pieces from about Dec]mber through even to February where even apostate-affiliated journalists (which is practically all of them) made special efforts to phrase even their reporting in such terms... a thing which is readily searchable and plainly illustrates their complicity because the trend was too intense to be dismissed as coincidence. We also had in the international politics quite a trend of agencies saying they'd do this or things would be that way, or something would be presented on such-and-such a date, only the next d]y for it to be completely diff]erent. And the foll]owing, diff]erent yet again. The [Gr]y] report was one such instance, and the geopolitical reporting of the 'will they, won't they' back-and-forth routine with R]ssia was another.

Mildly interesting, that last item. For starters it regards the Ukraine, which is why I'd bolded it with regard to the 'R]st' sh]tting. Now, the Ukraine is a bre]kaway nation from R]ssia. It's a this tiny, little thing to the very [E]st] of it (which symbolically would make it aligned with [the S]n], which is either 'the l]ght of truth representing Divine Will' or yet another [B]l] idol symbol depending on how the apostate system have actually been using it). So here's this huge nation shunting its mil]itary hardware right up next to this t]ny bre]kaway country (and as of this wr]ting, evidently bl]asting away at even the civilians there. More great stuff courtesy of the apostate system, how nice.)

Now let's pause on our evaluation of the implications of the R]ssia-Ukraine thing for a sec, and evaluate the [this-or-that] thing itself before resuming here.

There appear to be tw] major interpretations available here. The first would seem to be, 'It's all your Choice, Satori. We're doing this, but not if you don't want us to or direct us otherwise.' Which would be at least somewhat in keeping with the larger situation, except that they haven't been resolving it to the best of their ability and 'their' personnel continue to speak and behave on a plainly counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis. Additionally the concerns I'd presented in the 'Status Update' have not been resolved, so I can hardly 't]ke command' of the apostate system regardless.

The other interpretation hearkens back to something they'd been on about which I've presented in the "F]x in b]x" section of what I've been increasingly coming to think of as '[My origin st\]ry](#)'. In fact I suspected they'd redeploy the fallacy at some point, which is one of the reasons I'd made sure to include it. From the hypothecated counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis the telepaths and propheciers had been Choosing and which I'd yet to disc]ver, and amidst their non-overt intimations about wanting to uphold Divine Will and support those who do, I'd been in literal jail and the apostate system had used the opportunity of a 'captive audience' to, they'd implied, teach Me about either their model of Willworking or how they supposedly use it to implement the directives of the recognized authority figures. As they'd presented it to Me, you're supposed to keep your desired manifest outcome in mind and they'll keep making non-overt references to it while they're busily implementing it. Your noticing their references shows them you're serious about it being your Will, and their references show you that they're dutifully making sure it happens. As time goes on and the manifestation is supposedly closer to happening, their references get even more subtle until finally right at the end a big production is made of how it supposedly was all for naught, and you're supposed to 'keep the faith' regardless, at which point they manifest it. 'Ta-da! Another instance of an authority figure's Will has been served!'

Some major plot holes soon became apparent. Firstly quite a lot of 'disrespectful' imagery and symbolism being thrown about quite causally by them. Next, the ongoing violation of My rights from the continual telepathic encroachment. Then there was the trend of My keeping the desired manifestation in mind more and more, while they eventually did less and less - but if I acknowledged that plainly evident fact I'd be accused of 'abandoning My belief in and Will for the desired outcome' and disrespected by them all the more for it, ostensibly for 'wasting their time and effort'. The result was that the situation was definitely a 'bait-and-switch'; what had been presented as 'here's how to manifest your Will' became instead scads of more intense abuse while desperately striving to convince Myself that what they were doing was manifest My actual Will, when in fact it was plainly evident that they were doing nothing of the sort. This would intensify and exacerbate with a resulting ever-lowering 'mental ceiling' until it was enough to drive anyone neurotic, and it begged the question of just who was serving whose Will here. Then there was the problem that these 'efforts of manifesting Will' took a month or so, while the situations that desperately needed to be addressed could and did occur quite suddenly; while waiting for one situation to resolve, several more kept coming up and it was implied to Me that those came courtesy of whoever the officially-recognized authority figure within the apostate system was. Apparently he, whoever he was, could start a plethora of problems instantaneously while I was struggling along trying to sort out something for a month. And finally, the fact that despite all their professed loyalties to Me I was still in a physically degraded set of circumstances, and despite the employees of the jail and the courts being 'their' personnel, they hadn't just released Me. The foundational hypocrisies of the situation with which they'd been presenting Me were self-evident in retrospect, but I was still in-process of doing 'due diligence' and 'innocent until proven guilty' regarding whether the telepaths and propheciers were indeed sincerely upholding Divine Will and their own True Nature as they'd non-overtly said they were out to do. After all, to understand Divine Will principles and True Nature is to love them and to want to uphold them; there literally could be no motive for them to want to intentionally defy them. That just wouldn't make any sense.

I think about that situation a lot, particularly during the apostate system's implied "evaluation of My Choice re: Divine Will" while they manifestly remain on a counter-Divine Will basis themselves. In some pretty fundamental ways the greater situation is effectively the same thing and has never changed. The cell's just a bit larger is all, and I have to work to pay the rent for it. How nice. My Divinely-conferred rights are still continually violated by the apostate system either way, and with them having made society this dysfunctional I can't live the life I want to anyway, nor have the quality of life I ought.

At any rate that's the other likely major implication of, 'What do you think we're doing?'. A bunch of unworthy disrespect from people manifestly still on a counter-Divine Will basis striving to recontextualize the situation and shift the focus off of the [absurd] and unconscionable nature of the things they're routinely and systematically doing. I'll continue to develop that thought as we continue. For now let's resume the analysis of Russia and the Ukraine.

So geographically Russia is this big, chonky nation currently flexing itself militarily on this tiny, breakaway nation-state. If the comparative sizes are meant to be interpreted symbolically, [large] has to do with alignment with Divine Will and [small] has to do with a diminished and illegitimate state because someone has decoupled themselves from it. That is, [big] is Divine Will-aligned and [small] is counter-Divine Will or at least subsisting meagerly from not being in alignment with it. That would make a kind of sense, I guess. I'd be Russia and the apostate system would be the Ukraine, a breakaway symbolically apostate system. But if the sizes and capabilities weren't meant to be read symbolically, then given that the apostate system has thus far manifestly managed to infiltrate, subvert, co-opt and usurp the capabilities, governments and militaries of pretty much every nation etc. from its illegitimate counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis, then Russia would be implied to be the apostate system and Myself and My cause, marginalized and subsisting on limited means because the apostate system have 'eaten' just about everything else, would be represented by the Ukraine. And in that instance we'd just have still more disrespect emanating as the result of the apostate system's manifestly counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis.

Threats of major violence, even just subtly implied, are a standard and traditionally-recognized variety of disrespect. That's why for example it was disgraceful and an offense to present a weapon in the presence of royalty. And so we'd appear to have a pattern consistent with the 'Riot' and the cop shooting incidents. My, how nice again.

While we're evaluating the non-overt implications of the thing with Russia, let's get into the 'contingencies'. The apostate system have long been announcing that their 'limited exposure', 'patriot military vanquish the niferous Deep State', 'First Contact with ALIENS!' narrative was their alternative contingency to finding and recognizing a Divine Will- and True Nature-aligned basis on My own part, which was ostensibly their prerequisite for inaugurating Me as their next organizational authority figure. Part of that other 'limited exposure' 'defeating the Cabal' narrative involved 'getting countries free of the Cabal-controlled SWIFT financial system' and 'replacing it with the shiny new BRICS financial system that was established by the patriots and 'White Hats' in our governments'. And we're already hearing reporting in the international news about one likely sanction to be imposed on Russia is to banish it from the SWIFT financial system in reprisal if it goes all-out on the Ukraine. This appears to be maneuvering for position here; if Russia were out of SWIFT, what do you suppose would be its immediate financial contingency plan? Riiiiight, they'd be all about BRICS. Representative of the other contingency where the apostate system just keep being on a fraudulent and unconscionable basis.

And still evaluating their 'major contingencies' here, the British aristocracy permanently ousting Prince Andrew is another part of that. For readers not aware, that's part of the apostate system's major contingency which doesn't involve Myself being recognized as in alignment with Divine Will. The whole Epstein, Maxwell, Assange, Snowden etc. hype has been part of their known 'limited exposure' scheme. More specifically, it's selling the People the limited, 'for show' public fraud of 'the nifferous Deep State' as presented in 'Step Two' illustrated near the bottom of that page. If there were anything genuinely of concern to the apostate system their motivation for hyping it all over 'their' consolidated media and via 'their' social media skills would be absent. It's disappointing that at present we still manifestly have a majority of rather credulous 'troothers' eager to seize upon whatever happens to be presented to them as credible, and never assessing their propensity to let the apostate system itself miseducate and define for them whom 'the globalists' supposedly are or are not. I can but make the information available and provide common sense critical thinking and evidence for them; while the apostate system manifestly remain on an invalid basis it's effectively up to the People themselves to redistribute that information and correct the trend of intellectual sloth.

Neither do I contrive the various scripts hyped by the apostate system; I can but analyze and where constructively appropriate, expose them. Alright, so the public presentation of the British aristocracy, provably long 'sold out' as a franchise to the Vatican, has expelled Andrew. Sure, whatever, fine. Implications? It would be tempting to read it as the apostate system 'closing off' their 'limited exposure' contingency and via this announcing same to the rank-and-file personnel, thus settling the matter of which contingency they've decided to implement. Given the situation that 'read' would make the most sense. But does it hold up? Typically the apostate system reiterates their ambitions, their organizational will, by repeating signaling of the various things they still desire to bring about. When they stop wanting something, as I understand it, they stop reiterating it like a mantra and instead shift their messaging to things which do remain relevant to their ambitions. Another of those occasional situations in which, this time on their part, the clearest message to send would presumably have been to just stop hyping the various components of their 'limited exposure' scheme. I'm not entirely certain on that, but what I am certain about is that the whole context of having a counter-Divine Will 'action plan' and a Divine Will-oriented 'action plan' and then presenting them both as entirely feasible contingencies which the organization would be quite willing to implement has been itself plainly blasphemous, pretty 'counter-Divine Will' of them. And it's for that very same reason that it also comes off as pretty disrespectful to Myself directly, given that My authority derives only from My alignment with Divine Will and True Nature. As a signal even just implying their organizational intent therefore, such faltering intent both to Divine Will and to their own True Nature (for cavalier, needless disrespect to legitimate authority in its proper jurisdiction is hardly anyones' Divinely-conferred True Nature) it's therefore less than encouraging.

The same applies to the casual disrespect presented in, say, Russia's sudden militaristic aggression towards the Ukraine, and the same disrespect which is present in symbolism and imagery of reckless violence such as they've been illustrating with the 'Riot' shooting, the yet-another-homicide-by-cop piece, the refusal of apostate personnel who are politicians, journalists and other 'signal presenters' to provide clear signaling (which is at least per the apostate system ostensibly their job) let alone for the apostate system to seek to resolve things with Me directly, clearly, openly, honestly, and in plain overt English. Add to that the less charitable interpretation of their recent 'What do you think we're doing?' trope, and a familiar pattern of implying continued disrespect and impertinence from their manifestly-continued counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis makes itself plain. 'Stay classy', is I believe the usual colloquial response.

'Rebellion', redux

Those instances also present, or at least imply, another familiar pattern for interpretation. Specifically that of yet another round of non-overt hype narrating the idea that 'some resistance faction against the apostate system is spreading and taking over the place, and are currently a force with which to be reckoned'. Indeed as February continued the apostate's 'news' personnel intensified their tendency to use symbolic verbiage intimating same, and near the end of the month the apostate system added 'the Queen's got covered!' to their hype, which symbolically would usually be intended to read as though said 'resistance effort' had 'infiltrated and spread their way up to the very upper echelon of society or the apostate system's organizational structure. Except of course that [germs] and [viruses] have been given a distinctly counter-Divine Will symbolic definition by the apostate system, and as such any signaling about it is intended to be understood as inherently non-credible. I naturally dismissed the interpretation as such immediately, but the apostate system has been repeatedly implying that sort of thing with all the pollyanna optimism of someone in the throes of a lifelong gambling addiction in the apparently fervent hopes that I'd buy into the concept of a 'resistance effort' predicated on a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis and thus invalidate the legitimacy of My authority and with it, of My cause. The apostate system appears to have manifestly adopted the position that to do so would be a matter of plain default on My part, and that in that event they wouldn't have any immediate or urgent need, desire or inclination to resolve their own counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis since 'everything would be theirs'. Readers, I don't think the average person would find that much of an inherently respectable position on their part: to strain at every remotely feasible possibility to perpetuate having a widespread totalitarian cryptocracy keep on behaving on a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis which violates everyone's Divinely-conferred rights, oppresses them and is patently what nobody (in their True Nature, that is) genuinely wants. And indeed, to strain to try to manifest those negligible possibilities even as they continue to transgress against Divine Will and True Nature themselves.

So in the interests of saving all involved a lot of wasted time and effort, I should probably clarify with certainty a few things. My regarding the apostate system with manifestly increasing disfavor is hardly predicated on 'resistance first, with some fancy Divine Will principles added on'. I'm compelled to resist the apostate system because the system itself manifestly 'rebels' against Divine Will and True Nature. Therefore a 'resistance effort' which knowingly, Willfully and avoidably transgresses against them itself would be insufficient for Me. Why? Because it would effectively be the same thing, and perhaps even worse. That self-evidently wouldn't be a solution to the situation. It would merely be an unsatisfying perpetuation of it.

Next, the idea that for example, 'the telepaths and propheciers, knowing and desiring a situation in alignment with Divine Will and True Nature, are themselves sneaking up on' the apostate system and implementing a sociopolitical 'wave' in which personnel are flipping their loyalties to Me, informally, unofficially and against the organizational will of the apostate system'. There would be so many absurdities in there I'm not sure I'd be able to get them all, but let's get into a few of them. For starters common sense and basic logistics tells us that the telepaths and propheciers effectively are the apostate system in terms of human control and principals. To use the apostate system's own symbolism for illustration purposes, their [Isis] and their [Osiris] are self-evidently 'in cahoots'; for all practical considerations they're effectively the same thing. Even if they weren't, while both manifestly remain on a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis neither of them are inherently trustworthy, sincere nor reliable to begin with. Next there's the fact that even if they had a mind to pull something like that, the capability of the telepaths and propheciers to implement it retroactively makes the idea of them seeking to do it slowly and gradually here in the present just plain silly. And then there's the inherent absurdity of why the [Osiris] contingent would be so adamantly opposed to Divine Will and True Nature anyway. Indeed, that both contingents and the apostate system as an organization has manifestly and self-evidently Chosen a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis throughout is absolutely beyond the pale itself. It's just the manifest situation to which we all currently find ourselves relegated anyway, more's the pity. So for various major profound reasons, such an implied narrative would be preposterous.

But readers will recall that the apostate system has symbolically been making great efforts to present or at least greatly imply that what it's been non-overtly saying of late is on an inherently non-credible basis and they don't seriously mean it. Even when they weren't presenting that themselves, I'd applied Divine Will principles to the situation and told them and the public as much on My own. An inherently baseless position is by definition spurious, whimsical, arbitrary and untrustworthy. It also happens to be ultimately irrelevant too, but explaining that to the average person who's unfamiliar with Divine Will principles and tends to be very impressed by a comprehensive array of capabilities and control tends to take a while; for them, what's manifest is frequently regarded as all there is.

So if both I and the apostate system know they're on a spurious basis where sincerity is hardly guaranteed and the 'resistance' narrative is a complete non-starter, and we both know that the other knows this, we can just dismiss the implied narrative right off can't we? Of course we can. Except that I'm doing My Duty to assess the situation and prevent the People, and if practicable the apostate system, from tripping over some errors of Divine Will principles. Just a part of civic duty. So however non-credibly, what might be intimidated by presenting such an inherently preposterous narrative?

The most likely thing of course, the thing we'd almost expect to see here anyway, would be a diligent yielding by the apostate system to My Divine Will-aligned authority. That could indeed be presented, in the abstract at least, as an implied 'successful resistance effort against the apostate system'. Just a matter of using now-familiar non-overt tropes in ways that would speak more relevantly to the actual situation. A sort of non-overt metaphor, if you like, an allusion, describing things in the abstract rather than strictly literally. Non-overt 'political license' on the part of the apostate system, if you like. That at least would furnish some reason for all their symbolism to the effect of 'we don't actually mean what we're saying here'. Appropriately enough, it would then be a sort of benevolent, Divine Will-aligned usage of that whole [kitsch] symbolism.

Alright, whatever. After all, given that the apostate system was still retaining the control over the situation and thus the agency to act upon it, the Choice of implementation and so on were hardly My lookout. It seemed like a rather needlessly elaborate, indirect and ineffective method of yielding and transitioning, but that kind of methodology from them has manifestly been about standard in My experience. We could sort all that out once they'd actually yielded and transitioned, retroactively if necessary. I've been striving to keep as clear as possible My own Choice for a Divine Will- and True Nature-aligned basis in order to make things as clear and simple as I reasonably could, for the apostate system and the People as well. Needless contrarianism on My part could easily be misinterpreted as a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis. To be the most supportive of a Choice by the apostate system to actually Choose to transition onto a Divine Will and True Nature-aligned basis it seemed the most supportive thing I could do under the circumstances would be to 'keep My mouth shut' about it and let them do their work (I say 'let', but of course their continued agency remained usurped perforce), and this has been a few times very menacingly and disrespectfully implied to Me non-overtly by them. Which alone was cause for concern and suspicion incidentally.

You see we've manifestly been here before, the apostate system and I. Over twenty years ago, as I've already recounted in the 'Ops' section which begins on page [thirty-five] here. In complete and utter 'good faith' I strived to Work with them to non-overtly sort out a major flaw in 'their' system, without pay and while they were still routinely and systematically violating My Divinely-conferred rights, in order that we could set things right and keep them from inadvertently becoming a major public menace to everyone. It transpired of course that the entire situation had been mere deliberate contrivance on their part of course; had I understood at the time that they'd been Choosing a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis knowingly, Willfully and avoidably I would have known it wrong to trust anything coming out of them while on such a basis. Manifestly, they've figuratively 'already spent that nickel'. Their basis for trust is plainly lacking, for the basic reason that the counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis they've manifestly adopted has itself chucked out the basis for that trust. And this situation, this absurd counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis which they imply they're 'in process' of correcting, is just as contrived ab initio. There was never a genuine need or desire for it, and yet even as they imply to Me that they're 'correcting it', they continue to this day Choosing said basis. What am I to make of that? Not much. In every measurable sense their Choice manifestly remains now just as it was then, and throughout the twenty or so years they've been detriming Me both directly and indirectly because of it and violating My Divinely-conferred rights and everyone else's'.

Then there's the non-credible implications of loyalty to Me, whether from the telepaths and propheciers or from the apostate system's more official contingent. Let's consider: In striving to 'get things right' with Divine Will principles, True Nature and My Will and rules, they've been overtly and non-overtly continuing to transgress against all those things. Given that, how much 'loyalty' could the situation be credibly said to have? As it's been said, 'If you love Me, keep My commandments.' This is what I'd meant in My last about 'Start as you mean to go on', and it's telling how much the apostate system has evidently been trying very hard to pretend it hadn't heard that and to continue with the same implied absurdities regardless. By definition, efforts which purport to implement My Will and manifest My agendas yet plainly transgress in those areas do neither.

Source: DivineWillAssembly.com

Doing sums

In fairness the “[cha[]s] mode” in which the apostate system appears to currently be doesn’t seem to be the invention of My current ‘opposite number’ within the apostate system. Rather, it appears to be an organizational protocol as old as the overt Babylonian empire at least. It’s certainly built into their mythology and thus symbolscape. I’m all for respecting cultural protocols, but when they’re in direct confl[]ct with Divine Will and True Nature they’re clearly in error and eminently rejectable. Even moreso for an organization which claims to be ‘all about’ Divine Will principles. And doing less than applying the utmost of ‘their’ capabilities sort out this discrepancy between what they’ve manifestly been doing, and what in fact is in alignment with Divine Will and True Nature, itself isn’t in accordance with their True Nature and it certainly isn’t Divine Will-aligned.

Were they in alignment with Divine Will and with their own True Nature, they too would acknowledge that anything less is inexcusable and unacceptable. There’d be none of this ‘organizational protocols’ business taking up years while they still violate Divinely-conferred rights and their own True Nature internationally and quite blatantly, now with a Ukrainian civilian b[]dy count added to the th[]rty or so th[]usand ch[]rred ko[]las due to the Australian f[]re, with about do[]ble that and plenty more animal species inj[]red and displaced in it, the rights violations en masse in the government responses to cov[]d (and even as they withdraw those they’re still leaving the legislation in place to do it again whenever), and the horde of rights violations the apostate system bring about routinely and systematically (such as legalized infantic[]de and the outr[]geous incarceration rates in the States for victimless non-crimes, to say nothing of systematic oppressions and t[]king of lives in ‘less free’ countries), they don’t even appear to need a supposed ‘cris[]s’ to reason it away anymore. Were the apostate system in alignment with Divine Will and with their own Divinely-conferred True Nature there’d be none of this ‘just wait, this is just temporary’ acceptable as even an interim justification. No excuse would be sufficient.

The very fact that they’re manifestly still doing it, for any professed reason or for none, shows them to still be on an invalid basis. One which by its very definition cannot be accepted as reliable, trustworthy or credible. Result: They’re still Choosing an indef[]nsible basis and the only position that would even try making a def[]nse for it is one that’s itself on a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis. Indeed, while they’re on that basis there’s a phrase which the apostate system itself appears to have emplaced in our Engl[]sh language to aptly categorize it: ‘Their name is [m[]d].’

And they know it.

The mosaic

When it comes to imparting concepts and ideas via a non-overt symbolic method, there's an advanced technique I've encountered 'older hands' using. Often with Me, as the apostate system was involuntarily putting Me through its 'unskippable c[on]t[ra]st[ion] and tutorial mode' for something like tw[en]ty years of My life in My prime. Specifically, they'll 'part out' one larger concept into a lot of smaller ideas and present each of those individually, either directly (though still non-overtly) or indirectly by implying or doing things which they know will cause the recipient to associate to them. When it comes to profound metaphysical concepts this is often done, because the 'parting out' messages can be unw[itt]ingly rehyped as trends by the lower and less knowledgeable rank-and-file personnel, not unlike a crowd of small ch[il]dren w[an]dering inexpertly around with several varieties of n[otes] aff[ix]ed to their b[ac]ks without their knowledge. The original, larger messages are easily reconstructed and readily interpretable by the 'more elite' personnel familiar with Divine Will principles. So let's take this concept and, for the purposes of this exposure piece, give it the much kinder term 'the mos[ai]c' for short.

'The mos[ai]c' technique is used by many traditions or franchises, and is generally used to present the appearance to those 'in the know' that yes, someone 'at the top' understands these things, these Divine Will principles, and therefore there is competency and reliability 'at the top' sufficient to ensure that the important things like Divine Will, True Nature and Divinely-conferred rights will be upheld regardless of how inexpert and unknowledgeable the rank-and-file personnel are. In the case of the apostate system of course not only do the manifest results speak for themselves to the contrary, the very inexpertise and indeed the trend for amorality by those rank-and-file personnel were of course deliberately and systematically incited by the policies of those 'at the top'. Nevertheless it's an often-convincing means of at least reassuring those 'in the know' that those 'at the top' are aware of these things, because only someone who is could originate those larger messages referencing things like Divine Will principles.

And that's what this particular 'larger message' regarding '[cha[os]] mode' involves: that My 'opposite number' within the apostate system recognizes what's up, gets what's wrong with it, and that it's because we're both ostensibly about upholding Divine Will and True Nature that they're quite intentionally and methodically 'r[un]ning the apostate system into the ground', 'cr[um]pling' it with regard to public confidence in a sort of 'yielding' maneuver. Getting the rank-and-file to notice that gosh, the organizing signals can't be reliably nor properly read while the organization remains on a counter-Divine Will basis. A public, if non-overt, acknowledgement that yes, the legitimacy of the apostate system is absent due to the counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis it's manifestly been on, and so therefore what they desperately need is Myself as the recognized authority because otherwise the whole thing - and perhaps the whole international situation - will just go absolutely to seed without having someone Divine Will- and True Nature-aligned in the central organizational position.

It would make all those 'parted out' components of the implied larger message 'click' right into context: [Iva] and [m d], 'just temporarily!' 'not for serious!', 'we're actually the rebels!' or 'the supposed rebels are triumphant!', and 'What do you think we're doing?' or 'Only if it's in accordance with your Will for us to do this!'.

Readers, do take notice here. Such an apparent admission by the apostate system appears to be a sort of 'high-water mark' with regard to their acknowledgement of Divine Will principles and the manifest invalidity of their position with regard to them. In fairness, this has been probably the most accurate thing they've intimated as of yet. And in truth, this isn't the first time they've admitted it to Me. The telepaths and propheciers have done so with Me on the same point once, perhaps twice before. I've presented applications of Divine Will principles with them, we've gone back and forth with them about it, and they've eventually conceded this exact 'high-water mark' which the apostate system now appears to be revisiting... and then absolutely nothing was done about it. Words and deeds were disappointingly incongruous. And lacking witnesses beyond those of the telepaths and propheciers My only witnesses to it appeared to be those already within the apostate system's 'closed system' on its manifestly counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis. Meaning that nothing on earth actually enforced their default nor required them to act upon it. They continued as they had been, purely by fiat, and within a few weeks they were back on some other topic or agenda.

You see readers, it's just plain insufficient to present yourself to an organization like the apostate system, to stride up confidently to it and proclaim, 'You all ought to do what I say, because I say it.' It's not My own personal authority which applies here; My authority is only derived from Divine Will authority. You've got to show the Divine Will principles on the matter: what's right, and how the situation or mode of behavior is either lacking in or blatantly transgressing against them. Our modern overt culture has become so conditioned to 'having things their way' or attempting to, with utter disregard for the larger principles involved. The inherent conflict of the apostate system's manifest basis with Divine Will principles and True Nature is direct; I'm only providing the clarification of same. Result: Their conflict is with something much greater than Me, and vastly more than My own resources and so on are against it here. Were I not here, their conflict would still remain and only arguably be exacerbated. That's how you 'resist' effectively. For anything against which you would have the urge to 'resist', ask yourself at core just what you're 'resisting' and why. Either it's something only you find objectionable, or most likely there's some kind of substantive principles-based issue at work here. In the case of the latter the more effectively you can present that, the better your odds of success will be. Try and intellectually remove yourself from the equation and reason it out to something which applies to and for everyone. Try to remember that whatever you're 'up against' isn't your enemy; if anything can be said to be that, it's error and arrogance. Those are things you can usually safely presume to be mutually-resolvable with whoever you're 'resisting' and if not, they've made their position even more plain for all to see.

Back to the situation here, provided I'm reading 'the music' right the apostate system aren't 'stuck', at least not where they seem to be. It would appear the principals understand the nature of the situation quite well. But all the, 'Gosh you're right!'s in the world aren't particularly valid when they're not followed up with appropriate substantive behavioral corrections. Indeed they're no more valid as a response than the counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis upon which the apostate system is manifestly predicated is. 'Running the apostate system into the ground' quite deliberately and methodically doesn't even appear to be sufficient to sort this, and I should probably show very clearly why that is.

Firstly, the logistics. Driving rank-and-file personnel off from the apostate system 'in droves' would presumably take care of the majority numbers quite nicely, yes. But there will always be a slim minority of sociopathic personnel ready to regroup and reapply the proprietary methods of the apostate system to start the whole thing over again. And we all know that a slim minority of a very large number remains a significant number. Sure, they could be overtly hunted down, but apparently unlike those before Me I find the violation of Divinely-conferred rights via the flagrant use of the capabilities of the telepaths and propheciers abhorrent. And indeed, why should we have to contend with that kind of situation anyway? Readers will recall that per Divine Will and True Nature there never was a sincere, genuine nor worthwhile motive for the apostate system to have manifestly been 'apostate' or counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature in the first place. Sorting matters from here in the present, umpty-thousand years after it had manifestly established itself on said basis, seems half-hearted at best and most certainly imperfect.

The larger concern here is the sincerity gap. This hearkens right back to the concerns about a counter-Divine Will basis and resulting insincere 'yielding' that I'd described in My last. We've seen the apostate system present an umpty-thousand year succession of recognized internal authority figures who understand (and thus presumably adore) Divine Will principles and True Nature, only to violate them routinely and systematically on what can only be interpreted as a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis. The most likely 'explanation' for this trend, although of course none would be sufficient, is that the human succession hasn't been the whole of it. If there's one thing we've learned about 'multi-layered' totalitarian cryptocracies it's that there's usually 'one more layer up' to which we haven't been privy. For what it's worth, Scripture in addition to accurately referencing the organizations which are the apostate system's principals additionally makes that claim. And the demonstrated 'Shutdown' protocol followed by "[chaos] mode" from the apostate system hardly alleviates these concerns.

Consider: In a Choice for Divine Will principles and True Nature by the apostate system, we could reasonably expect to see repentance. Contrition. A sincere commitment to upholding Divine Will principles, True Nature and Divinely-conferred rights. What we've all seen instead is just the opposite of that: an incrementally more 'sucky' routine of counter-Divine Will manifestations implemented by the apostate system, ostensibly 'to yield recognized authority to Me'. And with the needlessly years-long wait time (inane on-hold muzak optional) predictably My eagerness to get things all sorted out has only been intensifying as the manifest situation both internationally and personally becomes increasingly more desperate. It's so predictable as to be rather suspicious as being a deliberate, calculated strategy. All this, plenty of training in Divine Will principles et. al, followed up with increasing eagerness to 'get in there and sort things out', all a contrivance to get someone to knowingly, Willfully and avoidably 'buy into' the manifestly counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis upon which the apostate system is predicated, even if you have to teach them about Divine Will principles yourself at the onset in order to achieve it. I'm striving to avoid making needless and irresponsible accusations; I can't prove any of this directly, but I naturally have concerns and suspicions about it. Anything on a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis is quite automatically suspect by definition, and with the [S■ndown] protocol and now "[cha■s] mode" it's just been a continued sequence of counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature behavior from the apostate system. A lot of counter-Divine Will stuff doesn't equal one valid thing, no matter how much nor how long it continues. So it would be error on My part to trust it, even as a deliberate 'r■nning into the ground' of the apostate system. A significant error at that, even with the most benevolent of intentions on My own part. In the interests of Myself and everyone else, I must refrain from it. So trust must be established and this certainly hasn't been accomplishing it. It would likely be unfair of Me not to mention that ('A matter must be expressed to be resolved'), to through inaction 'let' the apostate system manifest a whole lot of counter-Divine Will stuff insistent that they 'have the matter in hand' only to announce it to them later. After all, I'm trying to get they and the People 'unst■ck' with regard to errors of Divine Will principles and True Nature.

Then of course there are the concerns about passively enabling the systematic international violation of Divinely-conferred rights through My own inaction, which presumably would be an error of omission rather than commission, and about 'accepting something of value proffered from a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis' even if it's a supposed 'yielding' or even the telepathic capabilities of the telepaths and propheciers merely in order to ascertain the validity of the situation.

There's a place for words and a place for deeds. Signaling about Divine Will principles is only reliable when a system has in fact been upholding them; I should know, My "House" non-overtly uses the [absurdity] symbol to illustrate (and entertainingly!) the incongruities between a situation or behavior and Divine Will principles. That would be utterly ineffective if My "House" had itself already been illustrating that it had been acting from an [absurd] basis. Signaling, even signaling invalidity of basis, is lacking without substance. And by definition that substance necessarily has to be in alignment with Divine Will and with True Nature, or it's just as inherently unreliable and untrustworthy as anything else said or done on a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis - including a 'handover'.

In terms of constructive solutions, I suppose it's just vaguely feasible for personnel to eventually abandon the symbolism of the apostate system and sw■p over to that of My "House"... except that that 'nick■'s already been spent' manifestly by the telepaths and propheciers too. Without familiarizing Me with the 'layers' of Rome and Babylon and without an understanding on My part of the hypothecated 'layer' of counter-Divine Will symbolism the apostate system had manifestly devised, they non-overtly professed loyalty to My "House" to uphold Divine Will and True Nature. And then repeatedly defected, because they were on a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis all the while.

As reluctant as I am to release information that would complicate the efforts of the apostate system in an attempt to realign with Divine Will and True Nature, when I'm seeing what appear to be fundamental errors in their approach I'd be remiss not to, particularly when those appear to be exacerbating rather than resolving the situation. Getting the rank-and-file sorted out appears to be secondary to getting the organization itself onto a Divine Will- and True Nature-aligned basis, yet the former at least appears to be their major priority here. Additionally 'resistance' tactics and methods seem needlessly flint-hearted; when you're 'in control' of the thing, and striving to implement what's better for everybody and is recognizably better for the vast majority, it seems counter-intuitive to have to 'sneak around' and 'whisper carefully' about it. But what got Me the most here was the continued, routine, systematic and quite intentional transgression against Divine Will, True Nature and Divinely-conferred rights, in both existing ways and completely new ones. When something's doing that, it's when you know you've got to 'speak up'.

And even if the method were an effective means of transferring recognized authority for the system over to Me, given that it's on a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis I'm not aware that I could legitimately accept it anyway. I surely can't sort this out for Myself and for everyone else if I don't accept it 'free and clear'.

Identifying errors

The apostate system ostensibly started out by comprehending Divine Will principles, but then 'mortgaged' itself by hypothecating a counter-Divine Will basis and instituting the vast majority of its activities on said hypothetical basis. Metaphysically and spiritually we know of course that such a hypothetical basis does not truly exist. But from this hypothesized basis they've organizationally devised various subtle and nuanced proprietary methods of exploiting deviations from Divine Will principles and systematically inciting others they've recruited into implementing these, with the result that they've made practically every aspect of this manifest world into a dysfunctional illustration of such a hypothetical counter-Divine Will basis. Even acting through intermediaries such as the rather credulous public and the rank-and-file personnel, as the 'principals' the apostate system and those organizing it necessarily bear the brunt of the liability for the violations of Divinely-conferred rights and quality of life caused by (or rather through) 'their' 'agents'. An overt example would be a legal adult who has a pet or a minor in their custody, and the latter violates the law. The adult is deemed liable, or at least was until the systems of law had been subverted by the apostate system into rather blatant and systematized injustice.

What's more, due to the organization's familiarity with Divine Will principles the loyalty of 'its' personnel was practically guaranteed due to the assumption by the rank-and-file that the principles were acting on a quite legitimate Divine Will- and True Nature-aligned basis, despite the abundance of rather obvious manifest evidence to the contrary. And the continued 'flaking' of personnel ostensibly supportive of Myself and a Divine Will- and True Nature-aligned basis was apparently the result of a presumed counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis on My part. Some of this was perhaps the indirect result of the subversion of the general public's familiarity with Common Law and its principles, but even in such a situation an 'off' reading by the telepaths and propheciers for example would've been quite illegitimate. It would have been merely a result of the infiltration and subversion which the apostate system had already effected from its various agendas and efforts on its hypothecated counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis. [Common Law: 'Commodum ex injuri su non habere debet.' 'No man ought to derive any benefit of his own wrong.'] That's clearly just injustice with extra steps. And since the apostate system had been Choosing to persist in communicating with Me, such as they had, on a non-overt basis, and given that such a basis is by definition intensely context-dependent, I was left struggling to make sense of the organization's behavior within its own context as presented, and then striving to correlate it against the Divine Will principles which the organization itself had presented to Me. That of course didn't make the least bit of sense. Plainly given the manifest results it systematically produced and which it continues to, the organization was on an illegitimate basis and continues to be. The infiltration, subversion, public miseducation and moral degradation it was manifesting made it self-evident that it had been on an invalid counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis and definitely shouldn't have been happening. Acknowledging this and taking the telepaths and propheciers at their non-overt word, I'd made every reasonable effort to sort things out as best I could, particularly given the overt shiftlessness of the general public; a non-overt basis of action and response appeared to be the best I could get them to learn, teach, organize and correct. This was, it would at least appear, misinterpreted by the telepaths and propheciers as 'proof' of a counter-Divine Will-predicated 'resistance' positionality on My part, which seems from here to be the logical fallacy of 'assuming the conclusion'. Most curious, particularly given the capability of the telepaths and propheciers (as Divinely-conferred rights violating as it is) to have known My basis of Intent throughout. [Common Law: 'Actus non reum facit, nisi mens sit rea.' 'An act does not make a person guilty, unless the intention be also guilty.' Also, 'Actus legis nemini facit injuriam' 'The act of the law does no one an injury.'] Thus we'd manifestly had they and the rest of the apostate system 'flipping out' on Me even as I'd strived to overcome an organization on a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis through My efforts on a Divine Will- and True Nature-aligned basis. All while laboring directly and indirectly under the rights-violating activities of an organization which appeared to make little or no sense, on a basis which per Divine Will principles was quite impossible, and having the ability to just plain live My life with the amount of agency one would usually expect routinely and systematically violated and sabotaged by the organization. This was manifestly compounded by the 'information gap' which had been produced by the 'multi-layered' cryptocratic basis which the organization had been implementing as part of its non-overt infiltration and subversion efforts. ['A matter must be expressed to be resolved.'] I'm unable to think of a single Divinely-conferred right of Mine they haven't manifestly, knowingly, Willfully and avoidably violated, often countless times. Even where it wasn't doing so, its various efforts had made practically every aspect of society and interpersonal relationships inherently dysfunctional. But despite all this I remain cognizant of the fact that their Divinely-conferred True Nature remains a constant regardless of whether they've been acting on that worthy basis or not, which is likely the major reason I'm able to present this in as civilized and clear a manner as I am. I also keep firmly in mind that since these appear to be organizational protocols and bases which evidently pre-exist its current incumbent authority figure[s], these errors are with near-certainty not personally-directed.

Regarding the hypothecation of a counter-Divine Will basis, there's an overt situation that is analogous which I can present to constructively provide better clarity. It was a rationalizing bit of rhetoric which was used in a certain now-infamous sociopolitical regime in Germany, and presumably devised and implemented by the apostate system. It was termed, 'The Doctrine of Two Spheres', though this could have been applied to it only by subsequent historians. To summarize, it hypothecated two very distinct and in practice diametrically-opposed 'authorities', ostensibly legitimatizing both. In church for example you could attend, worship, read passages, sing, and praise the Divine. But the moment you set foot outside the church you were expected and indeed compelled by force to recognize the absolute authority of the political regime. That in effect was taking Divine Will, the Ultimate Authority (and the Source and Origin for all other derivative authorities) and relegating it to 'a little box you keep under your bed', which you could take out, and regard and perhaps dote over every once in a while. Eventually even this meager and paltry situation was degraded even further: you attended church because it was what was expected of you as part of your perceived civic duty to be a good German. Over the doors of the various churches and synagogues they had even interposed the visual symbols of whatever religion or denomination was represented with the visual symbol of the regime. We can immediately, viscerally 'get' the error there and how fundamentally wrong it was, from here in the present. It's extremes like this which assist us to recognize the errors involved. They'd had 'one God for the week, and another for Sunday best', and then eventually subsumed the loyalty to the latter into loyalty for the former. Religious officials would naturally avoid expounding on principles and passages which were in conflict with the practices of the regime, and even if the discrepancies were noticed by the layman it would have been easy to mentally retort that, 'Heck, I'm no theologian' and continue dishonoring the Ultimate Authority in favor a lesser 'authority' which was plainly mutually-exclusive with it. The human propensity for rationalization and hypocrisy at times appears limitless, particularly with active and systematic encouragement and incitement from the apostate system to do so, and the manifest results of such a basis speak for themselves needing little if any elaboration from Myself.

The solution for the basic error there is that, 'Divine Will is for every day.' Any organization recognizing it as the Ultimate Authority must surely recognize it as complete and all-encompassing, and indeed the Source from which every other lesser, 'penultimate' authority derives. The latter is clearly in an illegitimate position to whatever extent it contravenes the Will, Nature and Laws of the former. It's curious, the organization ('at the top', at least) plainly knows Divine Will principles but what's manifestly been missing is the praxis; the practical application of those principles without exception. [Common Law: 'Actus legitimi non recipiunt modum.' 'Acts required by law to be done, admit of no qualification.' See also 'Lord' Acton's quote about, 'There is no worse heresy than that the office sanctifies the holder of it. That is the point at which ... the end learns to justify the means.']

Speaking of overt analogies, the apostate system's manifest organizational response to the sociopolitical reassertion of freedom and justice is a matter for some concern also. Specifically I'm referring to its tendency to emplace its own counter-Divine Will-based shells in positions of overt political authority as 'puppets', which appears to have started with the tradition of 'kings'. While a matter of major and systematic overt public fraud and lawlessness of course, I'm even more concerned about the devising of this strategy when it comes to likely application with regard to the system's 'recognition' of its principal human authority figures. It throws suspicion upon the latter precisely because of its such effective use in the former instances. That is, it seems likely to be what the system's own symbolism could refer to as "recursion" or with the concept of "fractals"; a strategy being devised and deployed successfully at a comparatively 'lower' level of human organization specifically because it was already, perhaps, in standard usage at the 'higher' level in a much greater capacity. By this I'm referring to the symbolic "[life] expectancy" of the apostate system's recognized principal human authority figures, and how it suggests that they could instead merely be 'signing on' under an as-yet-unidentified 'higher layer' of some counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature principals unbeknownst to themselves. That would certainly explain a few things about the manifest situation throughout the last few millennia, and is claimed by Scripture even as it has correctly identified the major earthly groups producing the apostate system.

Whether it's the actual situation or not could presumably easily be established and proven with certainty using the capabilities of the telepaths and propheciers; from the apostate system's organizing symbolism and mythology this appears to be conferred upon newly-recognized principal human authority figures upon their inauguration. A few snags do seem to present themselves there. Firstly due to the systemic misuse of the capability in ways which violate Divinely-conferred rights, perpetuate continued 'security' for the organization on a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis, and which are 'warrantless' (in that to My best knowledge no Divinely-aligned 'jury' equivalent exists to legitimately provide the equivalent of a 'warrant' for such activities), I'm not aware of how I could legitimately accept such capabilities Myself, at least not until we'd already managed to establish the sincerity of a Divine Will- and True Nature-aligned basis for the organization, or at least the personnel who in theory would 'transition over' to whatever either massively overhauls or replaces the apostate system.

And that's when we start to get into the concept of how to establish with certainty the sincerity of the Chosen position of the personnel base regardless of what particular organization into which they Choose to self-identify as members. As described already, I've repeatedly had the telepaths and propheciers for example claim to support Myself, Divine Will principles and True Nature only to have them routinely 'flake out' on all those things. Even the comparatively lesser 'rank-and-file' personnel, despite the seeming intensity of their friendships and other relationships with Me, continually abandon those (often vigorously) as part of the apostate system's unjustly-applied [fxb] protocol. This is compounded by the fact that when these 'flaking outs' would manifestly happen, even those who'd professed their supposed loyalty to Myself, Divine Will and True Nature had been, unbeknownst to Me, been using some counter-Divine Will basis signifying lingo with which I had been unfamiliar, as part of the apostate system's 'hypothecating a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis' and 'multi-layered cryptocracy' errors. In theory what's to prevent them from merely establishing some unfamiliar counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature non-overt schema and doing so yet again? Granted the organization should never have done so in the first place, and so we again find ourselves contending with the inherent [absurdity] of seeking to sort things out from here in the present rather than ab initio retroactively. Incidentally, I had been noticing a few symbols here and there regarding said 'counter-Divine Will basis', it just wasn't making sense because, among other reasons, I hadn't been familiar with the 'higher level' organizing symbolism of, for example, Rome and Babylon. Without familiarity with the organizing schema only a few of those symbols were noticeable, and certainly no coherent pattern because the incidence of the usage of the few symbols I'd recognized was comparatively infrequent. Another indirect (and in fairness, likely inadvertent) 'advantage' of the apostate system gained as the result of its various infiltration and subversion efforts, thereby 'profiting' (if it can actually be said to have 'profited' by it) through wrongdoing on a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis. And with regard to the idea of My using the evidently-to-be-conferred capabilities of the telepaths and propheciers to determine these things with certainty, we'd additionally find the situation even more complicated by the usual concern about being interpreted as 'having accepted something of value from those Choosing a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis' (and thus being theoretically construed as having invalidated My own Choice for a Divine Will- and True Nature-aligned basis), and for the inherent unreliability of any information provided by those manifestly Choosing a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis. As in, 'psychic gifts' providing 'sight' or 'information' would presumably be no more inherently credible than anything said by personnel overtly or non-overtly from such a basis anyway. Strategically-motivated 'psionic misperceptions' from such 'gifted' capabilities are necessarily of concern, particularly in a situation in which I'd be interpreted as 'coming in under' non-corporeal entities Choosing a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis. A situation in which information gleaned 'directly' through 'raw psionics' was just as inherently agenda-motivated and non-credible as, say, what's presented to the general public via the consolidated 'news' media would obviously be a matter of definite concern and by definition is to be avoided. In My Duty to provide a 'best effort' to sort out the situation in accordance with Divine Will principles for everyone, presumably 'due diligence' in striving both to very actively assess these kinds of situations and risks, as well as to maintain a legitimate Divine Will- and True Nature-aligned basis is just part of My job description whether 'inaugerated' or not.

Then there's the apparent 'time wasting' with the apostate system's 'Shutdown' and now apparent "[chaos] mode" protocols. I suppose I can 'get' the concept of the incumbent perceived authority figure 'raining the organization into the ground', figuratively speaking, in part to necessitate the 'loyalty shift' of the rank-and-file personnel, and even when seen in best light a very tangible and irrevocable transfer of recognized authority to Myself, at what at least seems to be 'the highest level of the organization'. The logistical effect of it, I 'get'. It doesn't appear to address the inherent concerns with personnel regardless of to what organization they purport to self-identify as members of, and what is more the ongoing counter-Divine Will basis of the implied 'transfer' doesn't and presumably cannot lend the implication any credibility. A thing doesn't become 'more genuine' merely because it's become more intensely-manifest. Indeed from here it appears to be just another iteration of that 'accepting gifts proffered from a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis' concern, merely with a larger 'prize' involved. Certainly, the argument could be made (and I've made it, actually) that the holdings, assets, personnel, clout etc. claimed by the apostate system were in fact the products of Divine Will and manifestly, illegitimately misappropriated by the apostate system all along; that from its manifestly hypothecated counter-Divine Will basis in truth it 'owns nothing' while on such a basis. However, that doesn't appear to be how the organization and 'its' personnel customarily recognize and respond to those kinds of situations, which could in fact be merely another error, innocently-made. I'm not seeing a situation in which I can rely on a sincere correction on their part there, though. Surely those on a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis would 'say anything' to achieve their 'desired' outcome (and indeed the current "[chaos] mode" etc. seem to illustrate that rather plainly.)

In manifestly exacerbating the Choice for a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis from the organization in its implied 'handover protocol', the apostate system appears to be making the error of compounding the basis for mistrust and incredulity rather than resolving it. I also find it rather curious that the apostate system appears to be presenting the concept of such a 'continuous' method of 'transfer' from the incumbent in the first place. They're surely familiar with Divine Will principles and have made efforts to present their responses with a certain amount of civility even non-overtly, enough to be noticeable by Myself even amidst all the rest of the organizational Divine Will errors and misbehavior. And it's become evident that the apostate system had made training Me in Divine Will principles and then attempting to assess My Choice to align with them as one major 'contingency', with the alternative being the 'ALIENS!' and 'limited exposure' scheme. Therefore why a formal and official 'transfer' of recognized authority to Myself would have to be this kind of 'continuous' method rather than by something official, formal and vastly more 'amicable', is not clear to Me. Yes, they've manifestly been on a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis at least organizationally. But their Divinely-conferred True Nature remains a constant; presumably everybody familiar with Divine Will principles knows that. A more 'amicable' ceding of recognized authority transfer would surely be more rapid and involve a lot less transgression against Divinely-conferred rights and so on in the meantime. I'm aware of no reason why that would have to be avoided; why the incumbent would find it necessary to continue to 'play the villain' here. Indeed, in the apparent Choice to continue to do so they and the organization continue to invest themselves continuously even more into a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis which is already recognized as inherently non-credible. That is to say, in manifestly compounding a mutually-recognized force they're hardly establishing credibility or sincerity in such an implied 'transfer' or 'inauguration'. And it's not as though their Divinely-conferred True Nature excuses or legitimizes the hypothecated counter-Divine Will basis and behavior they've been Choosing, but a needless public display of supposedly 'awful sportsmanship' doesn't serve any actual purpose that I'm aware of, and doesn't appear to be either strictly necessary or even desirable by anyone involved here. Indeed, when or if we manage to get the situation all sorted out we'll presumably be resolving things retroactively via the capabilities of the telepaths and propheciers, from a Divine Will- and True Nature-aligned basis, so it seems both counterproductive and a little silly to needlessly protract an unworthy situation. There's surely no sincere motive nor reason for it.

While those things remain manifestly unresolved of course the apostate system remains investing into a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis. This includes while it 'prizes' anything, whether it's needless delays, fraudulent public narratives on any of a number of 'levels' whether overt or non-overt, or even traditional organizational protocols in favor of Divine Will and True Nature. All this would appear to fall under the category of the apostate system's own "wish" symbol: a misplaced and insincere desire predicated upon a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis. At essence, seeking to manifest rather significant 'gifts' and 'boons' to itself that it doesn't even genuinely want in the first place. That's surely no more the genuine 'True Nature' of an organization which is ostensibly about manifesting Divine Will than a "wish" is relevant to the genuine, Divinely-conferred True Nature of the individual making it.

We encounter the same error from the apostate system with regard to the 'lengthly manifestation protocol' it has at least implied, and which I'd described in the "Fix in box" chapter here beginning on page [fifty-six]. That is, the system at least appears to be conflating the manifestation of minor acts of personal will, even in an official and authoritative capacity, with the ever-true and constant Divine Will principles which are already so, and which can be only either recognized, upheld and abided by or disregarded and transgressed against.

That is after all how Divine Will principles or any other aspect of Natural Law works; the principles are objectively-true constants. For an overt analogy, a Willworker would hardly invest a lot of effort trying to make the literal principle of gravity so, because it's already so. Thus in the apostate system's various efforts to pantomime a long and laborious process 'manifesting Divine Will principles' while the organization continues acting in flagrant transgression of them, it's merely a case of the organization remaining for however long on a counter-Divine Will basis which continues to disregard and transgress against Divine Will principles, and typically devise no shortage of implied rhetoric seeking to rationalize or justify said position. As for the 'lengthly manifestation protocol' narrative itself as intimated to Me, it also appears to be a rationalization for disloyalty and infidelity to Myself and My Divine Will-derived authority, merely as the result of the manifest Choice of the personnel to remain, for however long, on a counter-Divine Will basis which rejects their own True Nature. Their True Nature of course would instead have seen them competent, eager, loyal, respectful, thoughtful, caring and considerate, and indeed applying their capabilities to full effectiveness in manifesting just and benevolent policies and acts of Will instead. Not only is this of course not what we've manifestly seen, their apparent effort to recontextualize the matter of their own accountability into a supposed obligation on My part to find their behavior quite acceptable whatever they do, is plainly illustrated to be entirely spurious rhetoric and deft sophistry committed from their current counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis. For example, the current manifest behavior of the apostate system is clearly in systemic international transgression against Divine Will and Divinely-conferred rights, and finding that acceptable would naturally be antithetical to a Divine Will-centric mental model of things regardless of whatever rationalizations were implied, such as a [chaos]-based 'transfer of authority protocol' in this instance. Put simply there's no validly rationalizing knowing, willful and avoidable 'suckage', or shall we say instead 'imperfection', within the purview of someones' own agency, and to attempt to do so is the manifest Choice for a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis, plainly illustrated. We encounter this phenomenon overtly all the time, in very 'imperfect' events 'which just sort of happened, nobody could have prevented them!' as reported throughout the national and international media. Indeed they're frequently the intensely-occupying talking points of the various overt political officeholders, and given that it's as a general rule intentionally-devised contrivance from the counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis of the apostate system it's even more 'imperfect' that they not only manifestly happen, but that the general public are oppressed by indirect force of arms into subsidizing all the hullabaloo about them and usually the manifestation of the events themselves as well.

One of the things we come to find here is that whenever they're knowingly, willfully and avoidably transgressing against Divine Will principles, Divinely-conferred rights and Divinely-conferred True Nature, they've manifestly adopted a position in which they're organizationally, not to put too fine a point on it, 'at war' with the whole of Creation. That is, in fact, what the position implies and the fundament upon which it's based. The position is a hypothecated state of non-existence, a thing which cannot and should not manifestly exist, a 'nothingness' which is mutually-exclusive with, er, 'everything'. As such that living impossibility of a scenario of it having come into manifestation and having been thoroughly entrenched practically everywhere on Earth has placed Me in quite the awkward position when it comes to addressing it. The literal irony of the organization, both overtly and non-, intimating that 'those who reject our system are violent extremists and radicals who have, without any sort of just provocation from us, declared war upon us and must be stopped as a matter of basic public safety!' when Divine Will principles very plainly show us all that it's been the apostate system, or more accurately the counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis it's been manifestly adopting and for however long continues to, which has manifestly been the 'declaration of war' here. So it would appear to be either a sincere error on the part of the apostate system or else yet another piece of contrived, blame-shifting sophistry which has been eminently useful in the course of its manifest empire-building. From here I can't establish which with any certainty; everything from a counter-Divine Will basis is inherently non-credible by definition anyway, and it permits little if any 'benefit of the doubt'. That's quite a manifest position in which to find Myself and the rest of humanity, and were I to respond in kind the expression I believe is 'no jury in the world would convict Me'. At least, no jury which is both familiar with Divine Will principles and not already manifestly on a counter-Divine Will, counter-True Nature basis itself. And from My experience practically everyone else flubs one of those criteria, which could be the 'reason', not that any 'reason for imperfection' is quite adequate enough, why the telepaths and propheciers had been routinely 'fucking out' on Me even in My efforts to correct the situation. But in Choosing a Divine Law-abiding, peaceful, civilized and constructive methodology, I manage to invest My efforts in the kinds of states I'd prefer to bring about; we've all certainly had enough manifest imperfection. The methodology I've Chosen also has the unique advantage of "putting to shame" the telepaths and propheciers and indeed the apostate system as a whole, directly commensurate with the intensity and duration of their manifest Choice to knowingly, willfully and avoidably transgress against Divine Will and True Nature, particularly when they've been openly, publicly and clearly presented for anyone of even average intelligence to read.

Curiously the apostate system's recent behavior seems intended to incite fear in Me. Fear is only effective when there remains an emotional investment in salvaging or retaining the current situation, and that's something which has long passed. Instead I find Myself continuously disappointed and disgusted at the counter-Divine Will and counter-True Nature basis the apostate system has manifestly been Choosing, and I'm bereft at the results of same that it's been manifestly producing throughout. I'd add 'incredulous', but incredulity dwindles in relevance when a situation which is just plain impossible manages nevertheless to perpetuate itself for a period of years and decades. I'm eager to resolve the situation, and ideally retroactively, but until the actions of the apostate system co-align with what it already knows to be right we're manifestly not able to do so yet. I trust I've been able to clearly illustrate how its manifest recent behavior has been moving it further away from such an opportunity rather than closer to it. As for the best options for the general public, the plan of action I've presented in 'A Better Solution' does still apply. They would do well to implement and distribute it, so they don't remain dependent upon whatever the apostate system decides to do.

After having described a while back about 'duress' and its relevance and application to the situation, the apostate system had non-overtly implied that they were interested to hear more of that kind of thing. I didn't assess their implication as relevant with that specific instance in which they'd presented it, but in general yes I generally evaluate in terms of Divine Will principles, common sense, critical reasoning and Common Law principles (as Divine Will principles and Common Law principles are both Natural Law principles and they Work harmoniously with each other by their very nature). So it makes sense to provide an evaluation of some of the major errors I've noticed or interpreted the apostate system as having manifestly illustrated, and make that available not only to the public but also to the apostate system itself. It equips the general public and the rank-and-file personnel with the ability to recognize them, to avoid falling victim to them, and too with enhanced familiarity with Divine Will principles and basic fairness principles that we all should know anyway. It additionally provides the apostate system with better clarity with which to correct (presumably retroactively) those errors if they so Choose, and a more detailed 'platform' for Myself (in a political context) regardless. Diagnosing the manifest errors I've seen the apostate system commit would certainly be useful in the event that much of this is resolved and I find Myself in a position to "revitalize" the apostate system and to 'adjust' it to prevent it from making them. They're not just objectionable when the existing administrations commit them; they'd be just as wrong if I did. I've been striving to find ways in which I'd correct the organization should it ever become legitimately under My Divine Will-derived authority, but of course in present circumstances I'm still encountering quite a deficiency of reliably credible information let alone capability and agency with which to do so. At least it makes some better use of the 'wasted time' circumstances to which we've all currently been manifestly relegated, and that's just a matter of Duty and Service to Divine Will and to the People.

Redistribute freely, keeping the text as-is.

Social media:

Facebook

Twitter

Discord (for leaving messages and chatting about these topics)

My exposure site:

Divine Will Assembly